The N. Y. The turtle is silent, and the voice of the drill-sergeant is heard in the land. Of the volunteers who are flocking to the support of the Constitution and the laws, and to the defence of our national existence, a part only will be absorbed by the organized and uniformed regiments which are already subject to the orders of the Governor of each State. There remains a vast, enthusiastic, determined multitude of men, in the prime and vigor of life, eager to be converted by drill, discipline, organization, and uniform into a great army. The Maryland Legislature, in their interview bright colors or tints which do not blend with the color of ground and stone are ill adapted to military purposes. The different shades of gray, light blue and brown, are best for uniforms. Red, black, dark green, and dark blue are very unfit for soldiers' wear. Rifle shooting at long range is such an important and effective department of modern warfare, that all colors which make the wearer a clearly defined spot in the landscape, the proposed spot in the landscape, which is second to the president of the They expressed their belief that no immediate effort at secession or resistance to the Federal are as bad in this respect as red; and the latter is authorities would be attempted by the Legislature or State authorities, and asked, in this view, that they should, as long as possible, be life, it has been hitherto assigned. The President replied that their suggestions and representations should be considered, but that the would now say no more than that the public nterest, and not a spirit of revenge, should actulate the world not a spirit of revenge, should actually a spirit of revenge and spirit of revenge and spirit of revenge actually a spirit of revenge actually actually actually a spirit of revenge actually actua is deficient in a most important point, it is almost needless to show. Complicated trappings are likely to add to the confusion of the soldier on a Minister to Paris, Mr. Dayton, to explicitly make known to the Erench Government that there is not now, nor has there been, nor will there be, any or the least idea, existing in this Government of suffering a dissolution of the Union to take it. But perhaps the chief point to be insisted on, because, strangely enough, it is that upon which there has been thus far the gravest error, is the comfort and unrestrained movement of the uniformed soldier. The best fighting costume is mere shirt and trowsers, and in this costume the best fighting of modern days has been done. Garibaldi's red shirts are not the only heroes of these two garments, as the battle-fields of the Mexican war could well attest. A man goes into action to put every muscle of his body to the highest tension, and when he marches he should feel his accourtements as little as possible, so that every strap, belt, band, pad, or other restraint upon freedom of action, which necessarily frest him and diverts his attention to his own discomfort, gives diverts his attention to his own discomfort, gives traitorous aid and comfort to the enemy Let padded breasts, high coat collars, stiff stocks, broadled. ded breasts, high coat collars, stiff stocks, broadshouldered straps, tight belts, trowser-straps and

THE LAWS OF WAR AMONG NATIONS. - The MANUFACTURER AND IMPORTER OF prospect of hostillties between the United States overnment and the Confederate States renders some inquiry into the law of nations on this subject appropriate and interesting. What are the legal consequences, and what the practical bearing, of a state of war upon the individual rights

To ARMS! TO ARMS

The undersigned wish to raise two in resist the designs of the usury in the usual transfer in th of citizens of the two Confederacies having dealings with each other, are questions which should | will be ALWAYS on be clearly understood. As a contribution from a standard authority to the general stock of knowledge on the subject, we quote some extracts from Kent's Commentaries, as found in Lecture third, on the Law of Nations, vol. 1:

on the Law of Nations, vol. 1:

Interdiction of Commercial Intercourse.—One of the immediate and important consequences of the declaration of war is the absolute interroption and interdiction of all commercial correspondence, intercourse and dealing between the subjects of the two countries. The idea that any commercial intercourse or pacific dealing can lawfully subsist between the people of the powers at war, except under the clear and express sanction of the Government, and without a special license, is utterly inconsistent with the new class of duties growing out of a state of war. The interdiction flows, necessarily, from the principle already stated, that a state of war puts all the members of the two nations respectively in bostility to each other; and to suffer individuals to carry on a friendly or commercial intercourse, while the two Governments were at war, would be placing the acts of Governments and the acts of individuals in contradiction to each other. It would counteract the operations of war, and throw obstacles in the way of the public efforts, and lead to disorder, imbedility and treason.

erations of war, and throw obstactes in the way of the public efforts, and lead to disorder, imbedlity and treason.

It follows, as a necessary consequence of the doctrines of the illegality of all intercourse or traffic, without express permissions, that all contracts with the enemy made during the war are unterly void. The insurance of any enemy's prosecutive an illegal contract because it is a species perty is an illegal contract, because it is a spec of trade and intercourse with the enemy. The drawing of a bill of exchange, by an alien enemy, on a su ject of the adverse country, is an illegal on a subject of the adverse country, is an illegal and void contract, because it is a communication and contract. The purchase of bills on the enemy's country, or the remission and deposit of funds there, is a dangerous and illegal act, because it may be cherishing the resources and relieving the wants of the enemy. The remission of funds, in money or bills, to subjects of the enemy is unlawful. The inhibition reaches to every communication, direct or circuitous. fall ends avors to trads with the enemy, by the intervention of a third person, or by partnerships, have equally failed, and no artifice has succeeded to leg dize the trade without the express permis sion of the Government. MARK & DOWNS

Tr ding supposes the existence of civil contracts and relations, and a reference to courts of justics; and it is, therefore, necessarily contradictory in a state of war. It affords aid to an enemy in an effectual meanure, by enabling the enemy in a state of war. It anoths and to an enemy in an effectual manner, by enabling the morchants of the enemy's country to support their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government, and it facilitates the means of conveying intelligence and carrying on a traitor-their government. ous correspondence with the enemy. These considerations apply with peculiar force to maritime States, where the principal object is to destroy the marine and commerce of the enemy, in order to force them to peace. It is a well settled doctrine in the English courts, and with the English jurists, that there cannot exist, at the serve circus a way of a peace for comondence with the enemy. me time, a war of arms and a peace for com-

The war puts an end at once to all dealing and communication with each other, and places every individual of the respective Governments, as well as the Governments themselves, in a state of hostility. This is equally the doctrine of all the authoritative writers on the law of nations, and of the maritime ordinances of all the great Powers of Europe. It is equally the received law of this country, and was so decided frequently by the Congress of the United States during the Revolutionary War, and again by the Supreme Court of the United States during the course of the last war; and it is difficult to conceive of a point of doctrine more deeply or extensively root appoint of the d point of doctrine more deeply or extensively rooted in the general maritime law of Europe, and in the universal and immemorial usage of the whole community of the civilized world.

Every relaxation of the rule tends to corrupt the allegiance of the subject, and prevents the war from fulfilling its end. The only exception to this strice and rigorous rule of international juris-prudence is the case of ransom bills, and they are contracts of necessity, founded on a state of war, cial partnerships, existing between the subjects of the two parties prior to the war, are dissolved by the mere force and act of the waritself, though other contracts, existing prior to the war, are not extinguished, but the remedy is only suspended and is from the inability of an alien enemy to sue or to sustain, in the language of the civilians, a persona stand in judicio. persona standi in judicio.

The whole of this dectrine respecting the illegality of any commercial intercourse between the inhabitants of the two nations at war, was extensively reviewed, and the principal authorities, ancient and modern, foreign and domestic, were accurately examined and the positions which have arately examined and the positions which did down established in the case of Gris-n laid down established in the case of Gris-n laid down established in the Supreme cash prices. When the American flag was hoisted over the Custom-house in Baltimore, on Wednesday. there was universal rejoicing. The Sun says: It was greeted with repeated cheers, and the Star Spangled Banner' and "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean," were sung. There was also another lig, of smaller size, raised on a staff at the top thirty persons were standing near, nearly the whole of the police force having been withdrawr, a young man named George Lemmon foolishly walked up the porch and severed the halyards walked up the porch and severed the naivards with his pocket knife. Instantly a cry was made by those outside, and Lemmon ran into the custom-house. A crowd quickly gathered and threatened him with death if he could be found.

WITHOUT REGARD TO COST OR Policemen Moran and Sutherland, who were near at hand, followed Lemmon into the custom-house and took him into custody. Without, the crowd was furious, and a rope was procured with which to execute their threat, but the police offered Call soon for GREAT BARGAINS at

In the afternoon the flag was again put up, and it is not probable that it will be again disturbed, as such conduct is deprecated by all good citizens. ITEMS.
